12. This cause of action arises under the patent laws of the United States and, in particular, 35 U.S.C. §§ 271, et seq.

13. The '033 patent is entitled "Method for Promoting Selling of Seller Items on an Online Auction Site." AAC is the exclusive licensee of the '033 patent with all substantial rights in the '033 patent, including the right to exclude others and to enforce, sue, and recover damages for past and future infringement. A true and correct copy of the '033 patent is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

14. The '033 patent is valid, enforceable, and was duly issued in full compliance with Title 35 of the United States Code.

(Direct Infringement - eBay)

15. eBay has and continues to directly infringe the '033 patent, either individually or jointly, including at least claim 18, via at least its practices with respect to Auctiva's Scrolling Gallery tool.

16. On information and belief, to the extent one or more steps of a claim in the '033 patent is not performed by eBay then it is performed by Auctiva under the direction and/or control of eBay.

17. eBay has, thus, directly infringed the '033 patent and is thereby liable for infringement of the '033 patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

(Indirect Infringement - eBay)

18. Based on the information presently available to AAC, absent discovery, in the alternative to its direct infringement claim against eBay, AAC contends that eBay has and continues to indirectly infringe the '033 patent, including at least claim 18, by inducing Auctiva to practice the claimed method(s) via its Scrolling Gallery.

19. eBay has been on notice of the '033 patent since at least the filing of this action.

20. In 2001, Gerard Lynch, the named inventor on the '033 patent, met with eBay, provided a presentation regarding the technology he had developed, and informed eBay of his pending patent application, which ultimately issued as the '033 patent. As a result, eBay may have been on notice of the '033 patent since November 13, 2007 when it issued.
