DEFENDANT

6. On information and belief, Defendant Orvis Company, Inc. is a Vermont corporation with an address of 178 Conservation Way, Sunderland VT 05250 and a registered agent of National Corporate Research, Ltd., 1096 Route 30, Townshend, VT, 05353.

THE '261 PATENT

7. Over a decade ago, the escalation of online purchasers and the use of order confirmations and shipment notification messages presented unique problems for online retailers. Online retailers like Defendant were increasingly faced with customer account break-ins, loss of products that were ordered and shipped to hacker addresses and maybe the most important - the loss of customer's trust.

8. Mr. Horstemeyer innovated many unique solutions to minimize hacker's impacts when mimicking order confirmations and shipment notification emails (the hacker's methods are known as "phishing").

9. More specifically, with respect to the '261 Patent, Mr. Horstemeyer invented methods and systems to enable online retailers to assist their customers in determining the difference between trusted and non-trusted shipment and order confirmation emails.

10. The '261 Patent has a priority date relating back to 2003 and addresses systems and methods for retailers and their associated customers to avoid "phishing" scams. The innovations allow confidential customer supplied information to be used within the retailer's communications to verify authenticity.

11. Providing customer verifiable information within shipment and order confirmations helps to stop or at least reduce fraud associated with the illegal mimicking of order and shipment confirmation emails.

12. Online retailers engaging in electronic communication via order confirmations and shipment notifications needed a means to help the customers "verify" and know the difference between an authentic communication or a fake "phishing" communication (impersonating the online retailer).

13. The U.S. Patent office determined that Mr. Horstemeyer's inventions are both novel and useful and granted Mr. Horstemeyer's assignees the right to exclude others from practicing the inventions, to recover at least a reasonable royalty for infringement of the patent, and where the infringement is willful to recover treble damages.

14. Plaintiff owns all right, title and interests in, and has standing to sue for infringement of the '261 Patent.

DEFENDANT'S INFRINGEMENT

15. The automated messaging features of Defendant's Order Confirmation and also its Shipping Confirmation online systems infringe Claim 11 of the '261 Patent.

16. Defendant also contributes to and induces the infringement of methods and functions covered within the ‘261 Patent.

17. Defendant uses the patented systems and methods to authenticate information sent to customers when orders are processed for shipping or when shipped.

18. A diagram of one of the exemplary embodiments of the ‘261 Patent is below:

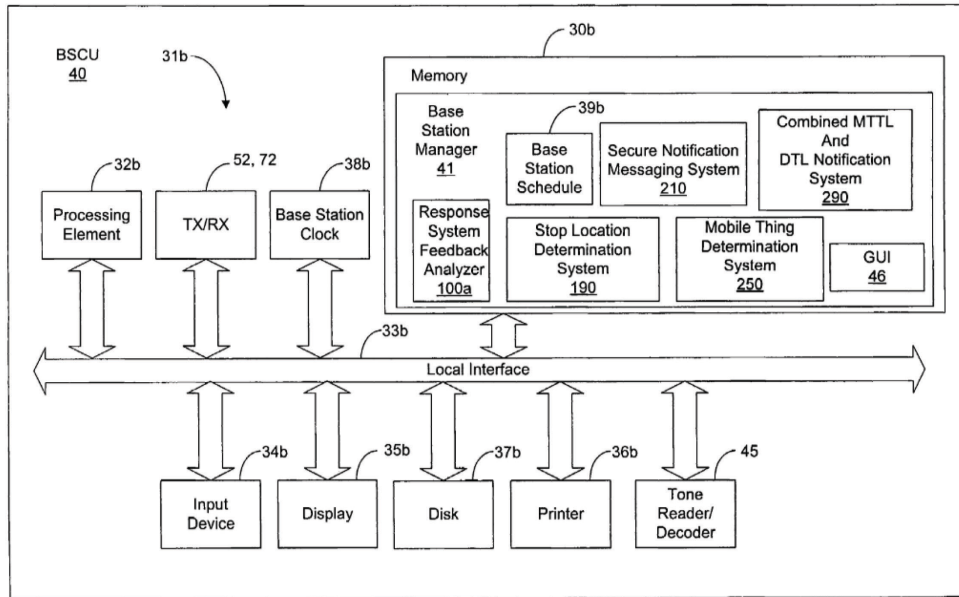

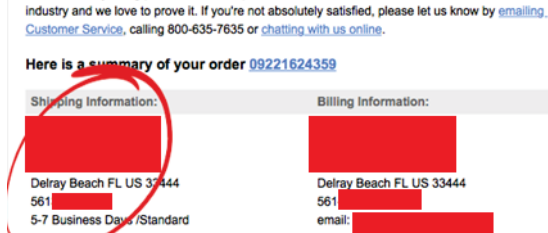

FIG. 3

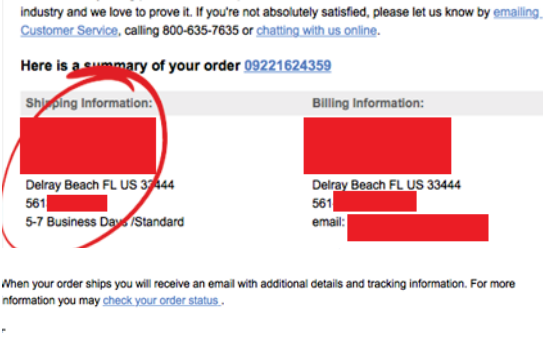

19. Defendant includes customer information within notifications/messages to provide confidence to the notification-receiving party that the order confirmation and or shipment notification is from Defendant (the proper authorized source) and if more information about the shipment is needed, the links may be trusted and used within the confirmation or notification.

20. Defendant has and willfully continues its infringement of the ‘261 Patent in at least the following representative manner:
